To see clearly, use your eye and face protection at all times!

Eye protection must always be worn in certain areas and job conditions. Just providing eye protection for an operator, but not a co-worker or visitor, doesn't meet corporate legal obligations. While pinpointing reasons accidents happen and focusing on ways to reduce eye and face injuries, this SafetyWorld Outline tells how to meet your legal requirements. Eyesight is a precious gift!

Whatever the job, protect your eyes.

As half a million workers experience eye injuries each year, this topic is most important. The Outline focuses on two key methods to reduce eye and face injuries and pinpoints a great number of reasons why accidents happen. It also identifies the different types of eyeglasses that offer the best protection. A very useful primer.

Eye protection...your safe window to the world.

Industrial PPE must include appropriate eye and face protection. PPE provided must comply with standards specified by jurisdictional authorities and the information contained here outlines the main thrust of these standards. Teach employees eye safety rules and, at the same time, assure them your company is in full compliance with these safety standards.

Just because you can see it, doesn't mean it can't hurt you.

This is a great Outline depicting hazards associated with the careless use of pneumatic power tools. It not only identifies dangers faced by the misuse of compressed air tools but names specific safety precautions that must always be present when working with such equipment. If you really value safety, this is a MUST HAVE SUMMATION.

These... look better on you than this.

Why should safety glasses be worn? The list of reasons PPE should be worn is numerous and a great number are contained in this topic. Employees may indeed be surprised by some of the causes of eye injuries listed here but ought to quickly develop good habits protecting themselves once they realize the justification.

Your eyes . . .

need protection at all times

Your eyes need protection at all times.

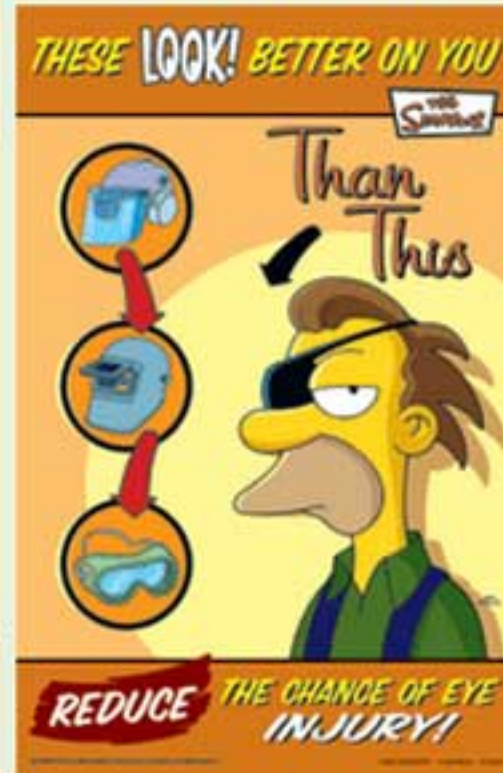

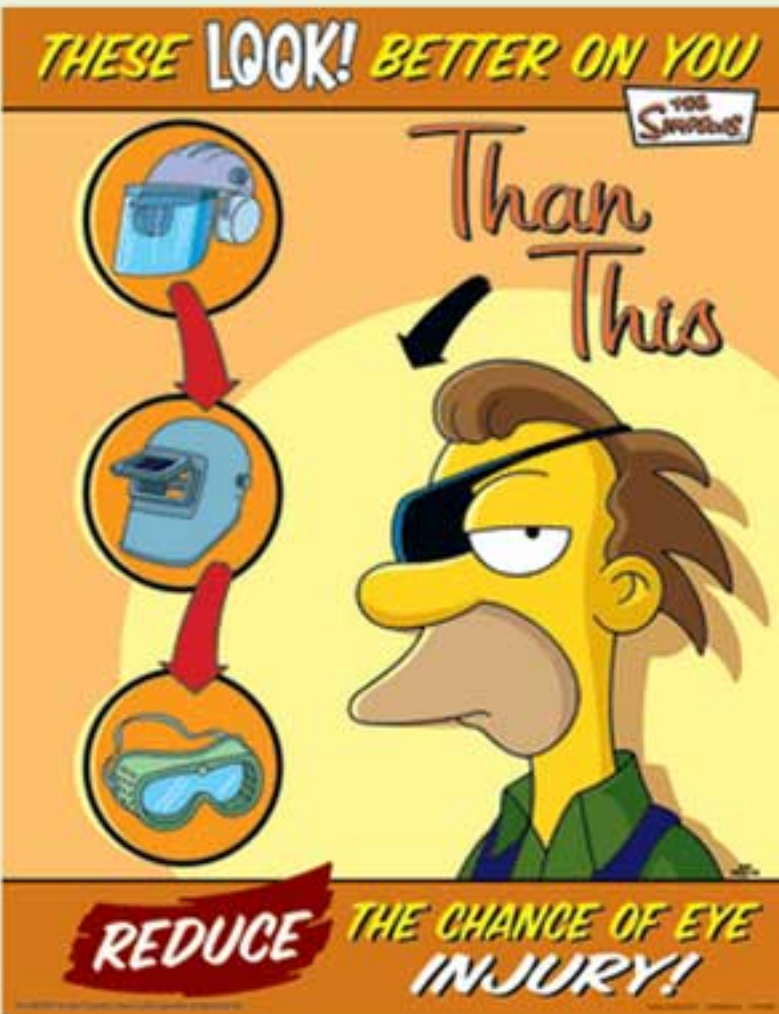

The information contained in this Outline specifies the work areas and job conditions where eye protection MUST be worn. One starting recommendation is that even if safety glasses are a comfortable fit, employees must be made aware of their limitations and ends describing steps that must be taken if safety glasses are damaged.

Take care with Compressed Air

Just because you can't see it, doesn't mean it can't hurt you

Just because you can't see it, doesn't mean it can't hurt you

Constantly used pneumatic power tools are highly hazardous. Always follow these safety rules:

- Wear the proper protective equipment.
- Check that hose connections are correct.
- Make connections hourly and protected from strong impacts or damage.
- Do not point the hose in a tripping hazard.
- Never use compressed air to blow dirt or air into clothing.
- Never direct compressed air at exposed skin or point it towards others.
- Never rely on air pressure held by the hose to pull it away from you.
- Only use tools and equipment for the purpose for which they are designed.
- Before using tools, make sure you have good footing and a safe back angle.
- Keep the workplace fully lit so you can see and have clear stopping barriers.
