Never shortcut the guards that are there to protect you.

The crucial machine guarding checklist in this SafetyWorld Outline emphasizes safety steps employees must never forget because moving machine parts, unable to distinguish between them and manufacturing materials, have the potential to cause severe workplace injuries. Homer, only paying attention to his donut, once again ignores fundamental safety rules. Casual carelessness will long be remembered!

RESPECT MACHINE GUARDS.

They are there to protect you.

Respect machine guards. They are there to protect you.

The material included here offers a specific list of machine guard safety guidelines to which you can add or subtract your own distinctive items. By pointing out the raw power of machines, employees will really appreciate the scary thought that machinery cannot differentiate between them and manufacturing materials. One split second of carelessness can change their entire life.

Machines are safe - when safety rules are followed.

Is using safety guards, when operating machinery, a "No brainer"? If your answer is "Yes", how come hundreds of workers suffer amputations or crushing injuries, daily? Use this Outline to identify machines that must have guards. Then relate the list to your workplace and show employees why they must always comply with machine guarding rules.
